

HOPE PRIDE GHANA OFFERS FREE ENTREPRENEURIAL TRAINING

The past few decades have seen a steady intensification in awareness on the need to empower women and girls. This is believed to have the efficacy to advance their socioeconomic status and equip them to contribute effectively to their own growth. To equip, empower and enrich the lives of the women in society through vocational training, mentoring and coaching and other support systems to curb social vices, Hope Pride Ghana, a Non-Governmental Organisation has organised free entrepreneurial training for young women.

Founder and lead director of Hope Pride Ghana, Mrs. Linda Ayele Delali Ablorh noted that helping women to acquire a skill to generate revenue and be self-sufficient is one of Hope Pride Ghana's core values. She was worried that women and girls are rather made to devote substantial amounts their time to unpaid domestic work and childcare which keep them away from education or other income-generating and self-empowering activities. Following from this, these women and girls remain disadvantaged. Her outfit, Hope Pride Ghana therefore rolled out these interventions to reverse the continuous social and economic relegation of women and girls to the background leading to low self-esteem.
